This year we will explore the implications of "being on the same wave length" - shared resonance - which implies a circumstance of interpenetrating mutuality. Using breath, movement, sound, touch and conscious awareness to be on the same wave length with the natural, healthy resonance of our cells, creates an opportunity - a doorway - to biological innovation and better health and resilience.

Science has found a way to reverse the time-space of cellular life, returning it to its original embryonic field - our own naturally occurring stem cells. We have every capability to do this ourselves by slowing down and deeply experiencing wave motion, in order to shift our own internal time-space continuum.

All behavior is a result of context, whether in cells, relationships or countries. We learn from within our own cells, how life happens. Cells thrive through communal resonance. This resonance opens us to a greater field which carries the opportunity for restorative health.
